

21 Life Lessons I Learned in My Twenties

"Your twenties matter. Eighty percent of life's most defining moments take place by the age of thirty-five." – Meg Jay

1. Your family is most important

Your family comes first. You need to keep in mind that if you're facing any problem—there will be your family who will always support you. And stand beside you in any situation.

2. Time is the most valuable thing

Everyone has 24 hours only so it's up to you how you use this time. Some spend their time learning some skill and some waste this time scrolling on social media.

This time will never come, so be careful and use your time wisely and effectively.

3. Know the power of listening

Most people don't ever listen. Communication is the best way to make new friends and It also builds your confidence. Don't listen to just reply, listen to reflect on it, think about it, and then reply.

4. Choose your friends wisely

Friends can make you or break you. Don't make too many friends, have a small circle.

Your friends should be real, not fake ones. They should uplift you, motivate you, and support you for your passion.

5. Stop comparing yourself to others

You're unique, don't compare yourself to anyone else in this world. Everyone in this world has a unique personality. You are 'YOU'.

Know yourself, find your true potential, and then see how much you can achieve in this world. You don't know your capabilities yet.

6. Build a side hustle

If you're in your 20's then focus on building a side hustle. This is one of the best things to do, trust me you'll thank me later.

You can figure out online how to start a side business in any niche. If you're confident about the niche, then start your side hustle.

7. Believe in what you are doing

You must believe in yourself when you believe in something your half work is done. Only believing makes it possible.

Anything you can do If you just believe.

8. Don't spend on materialistic things

If you want to become successful, don't chase materialistic things—you can make your 20s worse by doing this.

Materialistic things are just a short dopamine for a short period. You must control yourself in your 20s.

9. Know what you are consuming online

The Internet is freedom. You can consume whatever you like. But you also must realize this can harm you if you aren't aware of what you're consuming. You can take good things and drop bad things from the internet.

10. Focus on building skills

Skills are the future in any industry you see. If you have a particular skill you can survive in the future. You must focus on building skills.

11. Life is what you make it

It's totally in your own hands, how you want your life to look like. Your decisions matter a lot, you're thinking matters a lot, and how you do things and take actions matters a lot.

12. Build a habit of reading books

If you learn some things early in life, it stays with you forever. Reading habit is one of the best things you can build early in your 20s.

If you're not a regular reader, just think about it and start reading books every day—it will change your life.

13. Always have good intentions

Positive people attract positive people. If your intentions are good you will always be everyone's favourite person.

Make sure to have good feelings and intentions for people around you.

14. Update yourself with the current trends of the world!

You must be up to date on what's happening around you. Have an open mindset to think and understand about the trends around you.

Update yourself as the world changes every day.

15. Focus on building wealth

Wealth is real freedom. If you focus on building wealth you'll never be broke in the future. It gives you complete freedom to do what you want to do.

16. Spend more time making big decisions

Your life's progress depends on which decisions you have taken. Don't make big decisions with emotions.

Think about every aspect when making a decision that going to change your life.

17. Write down your thoughts

Writing down your thoughts is like therapy. Make a habit of writing down every morning, and keep a small journal for your thoughts.

18. Listen to what your elders say

When we're growing up in our 20s, we think that we know everything about the world. But the reality is we don't know anything about the world.

So please listen to elders carefully what they're teaching you about the world, relationships, friendships, money, life, and the list goes on.

19. Learning from your past and making better choices

Life is a learning game. You never stop learning. Nobody cares when you make mistakes in your 20s.

You have a chance to learn from your past and make your future better.

20. Life is a movie, you're playing a lead role

If you think closely, you'll realize life is a movie and you're the main character. And our whole life from start to end is directed by God.

21. Everything is meaningless in the end.

No matter what you have achieved in your life, in the end, you're going to die, this is the reality of life.

Everyone's going to die in the end. Be happy and grateful for everything that you have.
